“ I wish I would have had the strength to speak yesterday at Mom's memorial.

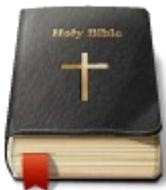

It has always been a joke between all five kids, which one was Mom and Dad's favorite. I truly believe in Mom's heart we were all her favorite. She found something special in each one of us. We wouldn't be who we are today without the love and strength she gave to us. Mom was shy and loved to stay in her "comfort zone". But She didn't want us to be afraid to get out into the world, to push past the fear, and experience what life had in store for each one of us. Loosing my Mom way to soon has taught me life is shorter than we hope, and it is never to late too start saying "yes" to life's adventures. I love you Mom, thank you for giving us your heart.
