“ My Brother, Richard M Isaacson, was born two years before me. He always watched out for me and kept me safe. He made me so proud as he served his country in the US Army. Only I remain to tell of the pranks I played on him. He became an Everett Police officer and even a detective, serving our community. Now, you cannot pull pranks on an officer, but I did at the time. I will never forget the big smile as his response. He retired, moved to Wenatchee and it was difficult to spend time together. You were a great brother; not just to me, but siblings that were sometimes not connected by birth. So many of our family is gone, but I expected to be my partner for so much longer. I'm having a tough time, even writing this through the tears. So many people say glowing things about you. Many I don't know. But every single person I got to meet because of you, feels the loss of your passing. We all must go on. But you will always be with me. I will always praise what you have done for all of us. Embrace those that you have joined and join in on watching over us. You've always done a wonderful job of that. Peace be with you brother. You will never be forgotten.

“ Condolences to Richard's children and to all the outlying Isaacson family members. It was a sudden and unexpected loss to everyone.

Rick was a warm hearted and an amazing person. All of his volunteer work with all the agencies he worked with, including the Washington Firefighters, the Red Cross, the Fire Departments, and the Police Departments he did work for, was amazing and he was very dedicated.

One wonderful memory I have of my brother Richard, was how he always took time to come watch my daughter Autumn (his niece) play softball in tournaments for her various Select and College teams when they traveled to the Wenatchee area. He took time to come visit both her and myself and watch her games. Always with a smile on his face and rooting her on. Rick you will be missed brother by so many people who loved you and whose heart you touched. RIP Brother.

Love, Chris, Joni, Amber (Mikel & Evelyn), Zack (& Breanna), & Autumn Isaacson.
