“ I was hired at McGlinns 10 years ago and I was blessed to work every Friday night with Sadie. I soon met Brock and became used to his normal Friday night phone calls which I thoroughly enjoyed. It was amazing how 5 minutes on the phone with Brock could turn my night from hectic and stressful to calm and happy. There were two things about his phone calls that were always consistently the same....they always put a smile on my face, and they always ended with "i love you,"..."i love you too Brock." On one Friday night in particular Sadie and I were the only two left. It was late and the crowd had thinned. Sadie had ran downstairs when Brock called. I answered and enjoyed our usual conversation. He agreed to wait on hold after I assured him his mom would be right up. Needless to say, over an hour went by. Sadie and I had laughed, talked, and finished up work before I remembered the call. In a complete panic I told Sadie to call Brock. I kept apologizing and told her to hurry and please tell him I am so sorry! Sadie casually walked over to the phone, picked it up and started talking. There was Brock, still sitting on hold after almost an hour and a half. Bless his heart. And yes, he was still as happy as can be. I dont know if I was more "in awe" that Brock was still waiting, or that Sadie just had that mother's intuition to know that he was there. If only the world was blessed with more people as patient and loving as Brock and his family. You all have blessed our lives richly.

“ I took care of Brock while he was a patient at Highline. He quickly became much more than a patient. Brock greeted me every morning with Miley Cyrus' "Party In the USA" doing the "sprinkler" from his bed (his sister had made a CD with all of his favorites). We were instant friends. We thought we might lose Brock, however he continued to make slow and steady progress. Soon he began meeting me at the nurses station in his chair, instead of from his bed. He helped me answer the phones, pass meds, and do my charting. We would dance to Kokomo throughout the day, it made work so fun. Brock's last day happened to fall on my last day at Highline, he came around the corner with some flowers for me as a thank you. It was hands down the most moving gesture I've ever experienced as a nurse, watching him come around the corner, flowers in hand with the biggest smile on his face. I'll miss Brock every day. Thank you for the amazing memories Brock, your light will continue to shine in the hearts of all who knew you.

“ I met Brock and family when he joined the Special Olympic Swim Team. Brock loved the water and loved swimming so was very easy to coach. From then on he considered me a friend and I considered him mine. As the years went by Brock would always have a HUGE smile and hug for me. He will not be forgotten, as he has a very special place in my heart forever. Take care Dennis, Sadie, Kameron and Alexis. Love and hugs to you.

“ I never formally met Brock. I have never spoken to him. But one day last summer he spoke one word to me and in that one word I learned much about the dimension of his character. I like to exercise and one day during the noon hour last summer I was jogging past the Ferrel home and out of the front door and on to the porch came Sadie and Brock. It seemed to as if they were getting ready to leave home for the afternoon. Brock noticed me running by and cried out a LOUD “HI” as if I were one of his long lost friends, someone he had known for years. His greeting was a sincere, uplifting and seemed to welcome me into his sphere. His one word heightened my spirits and I reflected on it several times that day and have not forgotten his act of friendliness since. Denny and Sadie, you raised a wonderful son, you should be very proud of all that he has been to our community. (Tim Larson)

“ Ahhh Brock. You were a good guy. You got this old girl's heart racing a few times when your silly heart was doing the loop-de-loop in your chest. But, you always came up grinning! You made a lot of people happy in your life Brock. Respect.

“ Sadie, Dennis, Alexis and Kameron, Brock has held a special place in my heart since I met him many years ago, when he first attended Sunday School. His love for his brother Kameron was outstanding and Kameron was often at his side making sure he was safe. He will be missed by many, and your life will never be the same, but his love will radiate in your hearts. Please accept my deepest sympathy for your loss. Penny Brockwell

“ I babysat Brock & his siblings for 8 yrs. We were neighbors. I will always consider Brock a kid-filled with kindness & a tender heart. He loved everyone & he should be an example to all of us in how we should treat others. Every time I saw him he would want a big hug-he was a loving, wonderful person. He will be so missed. My heartfelt condolences to Dennis, Sadie, Kam & Alexis. Many years of great & funny memories with Brock. Thank you for sharing your wonderful son. I love you all-Jennifer Barnett [Joel & Patti Neupauer's daughter]
