“ You are now resting, Grandma and I'm so happy for you. You told me a few years ago you were tired. You're home now with Grandpa. I am so sorry I couldn't say goodbye. I love you so much

“ To the family,
I was a nursing student in the 1970's and took a nutrition class from Mrs. Penhallegon. I remember her more than most of the other instructors I had for her extraordinarily gentle spirit. My condolences for your loss.

“ Dear Penhallegon Family,

Many years ago Emma and I did volunteer work for the Adult Respite Care program. She was a delight to partner with as we served fragile senior citizens.

Now as I read her obituary I am even more impressed with all that she did and accomplished.

The words...from 2 Timothy 4: 6-8 certainly fit this classy lady.

Sincerely,

Earl Tilly

“ Emma is an angel, that's all there is to it!!

I've been blessed to have known Emma for 45 years. In my youth she was the kind mom with the soft voice of my sweet friend, Julie. Well, actually, I liked all of her kids that I knew but spent more time with Jules ;) She was always giving, serving, making life more pleasant for everyone else. And she always did it with a great, positive attitude! Seriously an angel!

In the more recent past, I've loved Emma for her constant and continual kindness to my own mom. Even though she had her own struggles with health and frailty, she faithfully came to visit and encourage mom. One thing that really stands out to me is how my mom would get "up" for a visit with Emma. She would be the best she ever was when Emma came. You could hear them chatting away in the living room and mom would be right with her. Two angels sharing sweet memories of their lives of service.

Emma's sweet spirit and powerful influence for good will be missed. But we will honor her by choosing to be the kind of people she showed us we could be.

Love to all of her blessed posterity and kisses to Jules - Deb White King
