“ I had Mr. France as an instructor at the college, and he was one of my most memorable ones. He had a passion for teaching psychology, unlike any instructor I had encountered. The way he would get animated, really kept my attention and I considered going into that field, because of that class. You had to learn everything because you didn't know what was going to be on the test and if you missed one answer, you didn't pass. You could bring one piece of paper, filled with notes and answers, but it was difficult because anything could be on that test. It was a very unique method, but I learned and retained more from that class than any other. I have thought about him, time and time again, throughout the years, wondering where his life path took him. It is a very nice memoriam that is in the Wenatchee World. It sounds like he had a great life, even up until the end. I will always remember him as one of the best instructors I had. There aren't many out there like him, and that is truly too bad.
My condolences to the family.
