“ Some adults are too busy to give any attention to other people's kids--let alone their own, but I always remember--when I was just a grade school kid--Laverne as one of the adults who was interested in what I had to say and left me with the feeling that there were adults out there who didn't hold rigidly to the rule that "children should be seen and not heard." I'm sure we had her faults, as we all do, but everyone excels at something. I've heard it said, once someone has passed away you won't remember nearly as much what they said as how they made you feel." I hope Gail and Jeff will see this message and will know that there are people out here that they may not even realize that their mom has had a lasting positive effect on. I'm sure there are others.
