

Pammie "Pam" L. Hayes

January 23, 1954 - December 25, 2021

Pammie "Pam" L. Hayes, 67, a resident of Dryden, passed away on Saturday, December 25, 2021.

Tribute Wall

“ MY FRIEND PAM

Really true friends are hard to find and I had one in Pam. To some she might have been a little abrasive but that's only because she was brutally honest. She would say what others wouldn't and I loved that about her. I could always count on her to tell me what I needed to hear & not what I wanted to hear. I played a prank on her I had told her I was gonna tattoo my eyebrows to shape permanently. So one day I painted my eyebrows to look freshly tattooed. I made them huge and thick & crooked then called Pam to ask if I could come over and show her. I'll never forget the look on her face or what she said! I can't repeat what she said to me but those of you that know her can just imagine. After her choice words she ended with I hope you can get that undone! Then when I wiped one off she had more choice words for me! I loved her dearly and I'm gonna miss our trips to town, staying up late and watching movies. Betting on whose gonna win the talent shows, scratching tickets & buying all the cashews at Dryden market and just having someone I could tell anything to. Though she might have had a rough tongue but she also had a big heart and will forever have a piece of mine. She will forever be loved & missed!

Dorothy Johnson

Dorothy Johnson - January 04, 2022 at 07:00 AM

AL

Such a nice lady, she taught me how to use cream of celery.

alex - January 07, 2022 at 12:07 AM