“ I'm sorry to here of Sophia's passing.
It's been almost thirty years since I saw her last and I don't know why but I thought of her the other day and thought " hey I should google Sophia Cox."
To my sadness this obituary is what came up.
I knew her from around 1984 to about 1987.
The thing that always stood out the most about her was her sharp witted tongue .
She could rip anyone up.
If some one ever called her Sophie or Soph they would get one stern verbal warning.
Next time that hand would come up so fast with a slap it was like lightning.

*She loved to laugh and love to dance.
And dance all night.*

She loved her friends

She loved her Mom most of all.

*I remember going with her from Seattle to Winatchee just to pick out a black Persian cat for her mom.
It was a pure breed and Sophia really didn't have the money but she got it for her mom any way.*

*I only new her for those few years but those times were the best times of my 20's.
Sophia was the center piece.*

Rest in peace Sophia.
