“ Although we were not family by birth, grandma Van and I chose each other. We met at a show in Los Angeles and discovered that we were kindred spirits with a shared love for theater and cats. She flew into Southern California often to attend different shows and concerts, and I enjoyed accompanying her just so that I could see her react with joy to everything she saw. Van also made a point to visit so that she could be here for important events in my life. In true grandma fashion she flew in for my college graduation and then a few weeks later recounted the entire ceremony to the theater performers whose concert we were watching. A few years later she was here again with open arms to hold me after my father passed away. I will never forget her zest for life, her absolute wonder in everything she saw, and her never-ending affection and support for those in her life. My dear adopted grandma, I will miss you. Rest in peace. xoxo Sarah Jane

“ I worked with Van for many years and she was always vivacious, cheerful and a good friend. I have missed hearing from her during her illness. A lovely lady.
